

STATE REJECTS PHYSICS TODAY'S CHARGE OF EMPLOYEE MISCONDUCT

By Jeff Schmidt, 27 July 2000

The State of Maryland Department of Labor conducted a surprisingly detailed investigation into the circumstances under which Physics Today fired me. On 26 June 2000 the department issued its “determination,” rejecting the magazine’s claim that I engaged in misconduct on the job by writing Disciplined Minds.

The investigation was prompted by my request for unemployment benefits, because eligibility for such benefits is limited to people who lose their jobs “through no fault of their own.” Thus, if you quit your job or are fired for misconduct, you may not be entitled to benefits.

An unemployment office examiner explained to me that “Some employers send us information and indicate that they do not wish to dispute the claim.” Such a statement paves the way for the employee to get benefits. Physics Today didn’t do that. Instead, the magazine sought a ruling in its favor, which would not only punish me further and save the magazine money, but also give the magazine political support in the form of third-party validation of its action against me. Thus, Physics Today charged me with misconduct, telling the state that “The employee admittedly used company time to work on a personal project over an extended period of time.” This made an investigation necessary so that the state could determine independently whether or not I engaged in misconduct.

The centerpiece of the investigation was a hearing that took the better part of an hour, during which I offered a very different theory of why the magazine fired me. I said that Physics Today fired me for political reasons — specifically, management didn’t like the radical content of the book and was looking for an excuse to get rid of me because of my workplace activism.

Department of Labor examiner Tasha Owens conducted the hearing by telephone. I waived my right to representation, figuring that I could present the facts as well as anyone. Owens interviewed me first, for 28 minutes. To test the company’s claim, she asked me questions about how much time at the office I spent writing the book. (Answer: Break time.) To test my claim, she asked me questions about whether or not the company ever asked me how much time at the office I spent writing the book. (Answer: No, they didn’t seem to care about that.) At the end of the interview, she scheduled me for a follow-up interview to give me the opportunity to rebut points that Physics Today would make in its interview.

However, Owens didn't call at the appointed time, and so I called her and asked why. She said, "There was nothing to rebut." Interestingly, Physics Today and I agreed about what I did, and disagreed only about whether or not my actions constituted misconduct. AIP, she said, "gave me the same information that you gave me."

Having gathered the facts, Owens had to make a decision. According to Susan R. Bass, an administrator in the office of the executive director of Maryland's unemployment insurance program, Owens had three levels of employee misconduct to choose from:

- o Simple misconduct — Here the fired employee gets "delayed benefits," which begin after a five- to ten-week waiting period.
- o Gross misconduct — No benefits.
- o Aggravated misconduct — No benefits, and reduced eligibility for benefits following subsequent employment.

Owens ruled that my work on the book didn't even rise to the level of simple misconduct, and so she awarded me full benefits, retroactive to 4 June 2000. I will receive up to $6,500, which the American Institute of Physics, the magazine's publisher, will pay for through increased unemployment insurance premiums.

Physics Today was given the opportunity to appeal the state's finding, but did not do so. If Physics Today sincerely believed its own story that it fired me for real misconduct on the job, and not just for political misconduct, it could have — and I think would have — appealed. The magazine would have appealed not only to save thousands of dollars, but also to dispel the implication that its motives for firing me weren't squeaky clean.

The hearing was a high-anxiety event because a lot was at stake, both monetarily and politically. Strangely, however, it was also fun, because it was so different from the way I was used to seeing disagreements resolved in the

Physics Today workplace, where power so often trumps reason. It was a pleasure to speak the truth outside of that repressive hierarchy; the favorable decision was just icing on the cake. The ruling means that Physics Today fired me for a reason other than “misconduct in connection with the work.” Who will see that reason as anything other than political misconduct? Physics Today now has to consider the possibility that both the hearing and the third-party perception of its behavior are previews of future events.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF LABOR HEARING

Partial transcript of interview of Jeff Schmidt by claim examiner Tasha Owens, 16 June 2000, 7:59 am to 8:27 am, by telephone

Tasha Owens: My name is Miss. Owens. I’m calling from the State of Maryland Unemployment Office. I’m calling to initiate a scheduled telephone hearing....

Owens: I'm going to take a statement from you on the reason why you are no longer working for American Institute of Physics.

Jeff Schmidt: ... Do you have any information from the employer?

Owens: I sure do.

Schmidt: Did they submit it in writing?

Owens: Yes, they did.

Schmidt: You know, I never got a copy of that.

Owens: Well, it’s a statement. They didn’t send me a termination letter or anything.

Schmidt: Can you tell me what the statement is?

Owens: Sure. As soon as....

Owens: First day of work, 3-17-81?

Schmidt: Right.

Owens: Last day of work, 6-2-2000?

Schmidt: Yeah.

Owens: 34.83 an hour?

Schmidt: That's about right.

Owens: This is the information your employer gave me. It was a very brief statement. They indicated, the employee admittedly used company time to work on a personal project over an extended period of time. And that's it.

Schmidt: Are they trying to deny me this benefit?

Owens: Well, at this point I don't know. This is all the information they indicated. I do need to talk to them further, to get further information from them, as to what they meant by that — what was it that you were working on. At that point I will make a decision on your case.... Some employers do send us information and indicate that they do not wish to dispute the claim. But in this case your employer did not indicate anything other than the reason why you were terminated. Now, what was the reason given to you for being discharged?

Schmidt: [after a very long pause] They gave essentially the reason that you read there.

Owens: That you were using company time to work on a personal project?

Schmidt: Right. Although they never actually said it that way.

Owens: What way did they say it?

Schmidt: What they said was that I wasn't fully engaged at the magazine. Those are their exact words. They didn't use the words that they gave to you. Their exact words — they said, "You weren't fully engaged at the magazine."

Owens: Do you agree with this reason?

Schmidt: No, I don't.

Owens: Any verbal, written warnings in relation to the reason you were discharged?

Schmidt: No.

Owens: Did you protest your discharge?

Schmidt: Definitely. I told them that it's unacceptable. And then later I let them know that I wanted my job back.

Schmidt: ... It occurred on Monday the 22nd of May, 2000.

Owens: What happened on that day.

Schmidt: That day they found out that I had written a book.

Owens: ... Were you writing it on company time?

Schmidt: I wrote it only in my spare time.

Owens: Did you finish the book on the 22nd, or you were still writing this book?

Schmidt: It was finished by then....

Owens: They thought that you had wrote it during the time when you should have been working?

Schmidt: Right. But I always did my work, and they always gave me good reviews.

Owens: When they found out that you had wrote this book, on the 22nd, they questioned you about it that day?

Schmidt: They never questioned me about it.

Owens: They found out you wrote the book — and, what, they commented, you know, “Oh, we found out that you wrote a book”?

Schmidt: No, they never commented on the book — until they said that I was fired because of the book.

Owens: But they told you on the 2nd [of June] that they knew that you had wrote this book? That they knew about the book?

Schmidt: Yes. That’s the reason that they cited for firing me.

Owens: You said they told you that they found out that you had wrote a book. Did they have reason to believe that it was during company time?

Schmidt: They didn’t have good reason to believe that. What they had was a statement in the book itself, that said that it was written in part on company time.

Owens: Ok. From this statement alone, they said that you had been doing...

Schmidt: Exactly.

Owens: ...Ok.

Schmidt: But the statement was a statement at the very beginning of the book that was there for dramatic effect, and in fact I never spent more time than somebody would spend, say, taking a walk to the water cooler or, you know, all the things they allow people to do, like surfing the net or playing computer solitaire or making personal phone calls or exchanging personal e-mail....

Owens: But you did it during break time and not during the time you were supposed to be working.

Schmidt: Exactly. It was break time....

Owens: When they said that they read this in your book, that it had been done on company time, you told them that it was for dramatic effect?

Schmidt: It said it had been done in part on company time. It didn't say it had been done on company time. It said it had been written in part. But they never asked me, "Well, what part?" You know — "How much time?" And they never asked, "Are you just trying to have a catchy introduction to your book?" No, they never asked me anything.

Owens: But did you explain that to them?

Schmidt: I told them that it wasn't true. But they wouldn't listen. They said, "We are not here to answer questions." They wouldn't discuss anything at all with me.

Owens: [Typing]

Schmidt: You know the employer sets the standard on how much work the employee has to do?

Owens: Yes.

Schmidt: I was ahead in my work by the standard that they set. They had said that I should do a certain amount of work in a year. And at the time they fired me I had just finished all of that work in ten months' time.

Owens: Who told you that you were doing well, that you were ahead in your work?

Schmidt: Stephen Benka and Randolph Nanna....

Owens: Was this recent?

Schmidt: It was within the current review period....which goes from September 1999 to September 2000. They told me how pleased they were with how well I was doing. ... So they can't claim that I didn't do what they asked me to do. In fact, they're not saying that I didn't do what they asked me to do, are they?

Owens: No, they're not.

Schmidt: They were just looking for an excuse to get rid of me. ... I had been a workplace activist....

Owens: What's the name of your book?

Schmidt: Disciplined Minds.

Owens: Good reviews?

Schmidt: Yeah — actually, it got a good review from somebody at the American Institute of Physics ... a professional historian, and he reviewed the book and gave it a positive review.

Owens: I'm going to give you a rebuttal time, just in case I have to get back in contact with you for additional information. I'm going to say June the 20th, which is Tuesday, between the hours of 8:30 and 9:30. ... If you don't hear anything from me, then that means I didn't need any additional information from you, and a decision will be mailed out to you.

Schmidt: You send the decision yourself?

Owens: Yes. It will be mailed out to you. If it's in your favor, a check will follow behind. If it's not, you have the right to file an appeal. ....

FOLLOW-UP CALL TO UNEMPLOYMENT CLAIM EXAMINER, 20 JUNE 2000

Partial transcript of call to Tasha Owens at the College Park unemployment office (301-313-8000), around 10 AM

Jeff Schmidt: You say they [AIP] didn't submit anything in writing?

Tasha Owens: No, I spoke to them, and they told me — they gave me the same information that you gave me. So I'll be making a decision and mailing it out to you.

Schmidt: Can you send me a copy of what they said?

Owens: I can send you a copy of the decision, but I can't send you a copy of the information that they gave me.

Schmidt: Can you tell me what they said, when your computer is working again?

Owens: Well, I can tell you what they said, right now.

Schmidt: Great.

Owens: The employer, basically they're saying the same thing — the information you gave me — was that they saw in your book, stating that the book had been done on company time. And they're saying that that alone. Also, that the fact that you had asked for reduced hours. But they didn't — the reason why I didn't call you back on that is because they did not specify why you needed that time. And they did grant you reduced hours. So, you know, it's really not telling me that this is the reason why you wanted, was to finish your book. They just said that you did ask for reduced hours. This was another reason why they felt that you were doing it on company time — because you asked for reduced hours. You didn't say what it was for; you just asked for reduced hours. And that they granted you the request, so. That's basically the.... That was the information that they gave me. And they could not say what hours you spent doing the book. They don't know. So that's the information I have. I have enough information to make my decision.

Schmidt: I noticed that you didn't call me this morning during the appointed time.

Owens: That's the reason why I didn't call you — because that was the information they gave me, and there was nothing to rebut.

Schmidt: What is the timing of the decision?

Owens: The decision will be made this week. And you'll receive it in the next couple of days.

You have applied for Unemployment Insurance Benefits and have requested the Maryland Office of Unemployment Insurance to determine the amount of benefits which you will be eligible to receive if you meet all of the eligibility requirements of the Law. THE LAW PROVIDES FOR FINES OR IMPRISONMENT OR BOTH IN ADDITION TO DISQUALIFICATION AND REPAYMENT OF BENEFITS IF YOU KNOWINGLY FAIL TO DISCLOSE INFORMATION OR GIVE FALSE INFORMATION IN ORDER TO OBTAIN OR INCREASE BENEFITS.

Enclosed is the pamphlet 'What You Should Know About Unemployment Insurance in Maryland.' It is your responsibility to read this information and to comply with all requirements contained in it. Failure to comply with any of these requirements may result in denial of benefits.

You have been informed that unemployment insurance benefits may be denied if you refuse to apply for or accept suitable work.

Beginning immediately, you must make the following work search weekly.

Two(2) contacts, either by resume or in person, with an individual with hiring authority and/or knowledge.

You must keep a detailed record of your work search contacts, including dates of contacts, names and addresses of employers, names and titles of persons contacted, phone numbers of employers contacted, type of work sought, how job contact was made, whether application was taken and results of contacts. Your work search contacts are subject to verification by the Office of Unemployment Insurance. You must keep a copy of your work search records for one year after the contacts were made.

If you work during the week for which you are claiming benefits, you must report all gross earnings regardless of whether or not you have been paid yet.

It is your responsibility to file your claim certifications by telephone (Telecerts) on a timely basis. If you attempt to file a Telecert and fourteen (14) or more days have passed since your last claim, benefits may be denied. Pages 8 and 9 of the pamphlet explains the Telecert process.

You may be contacted by telephone to discuss any issues concerning this claim. You will receive an appointment notice with the specific instructions, date and time. If you do not have a telephone you must contact the local office.

You have certified that the information you have given over the telephone in connection with your application for unemployment insurance benefits is complete and correct.

I certify that I have provided the claimant with all of the information on this form.

- 8-801 The claimant must be totally or partially unemployed through no fault of his/her own.
- 8-803 A claimant must report all earnings for each week he/she files claims for unemployment insurance benefits.
- 8-804 The dependents allowance is payable only if the claimant provides support for the dependent child under 16 years of age at the beginning of the claimant's benefit year.
- 8-809 If the claimant has received benefits for which he/she is found to have been ineligible, the claimant must repay those benefits. In addition, the amount may be recovered from benefits payable to the claimant in the future.
- 8-809 If the claimant knowingly made a false statement or failed to disclose material facts in order to obtain benefits, he/she will be disqualified for one year, must repay all benefits received, and may be prosecuted.
- 8-901 The claimant must file a claim for each week of unemployment in accordance with regulations.
- 8-902 The claimant must register for work and continue to report and keep his/her registration active.
- 8-903 The claimant must be able to work and available for work and make a reasonable effort to find work.
- 8-910 The claimant who received benefits in a previous benefit year shall not be eligible for future benefits unless the claimant has worked for an employer and earned wages equal to ten times his/her new weekly benefit amount after the beginning of the first of such benefit years.
- 8-1001 If the claimant voluntarily left work without good cause, the claimant may be disqualified from five to ten weeks or until he/she has become reemployed and earned fifteen times his/her weekly benefit amount. If a claimant voluntarily leaves work to become self-employed, to accompany or join a spouse in a new locality or to attend an educational institution the claimant will be disqualified until he/she has become reemployed and earned fifteen times his weekly benefit amount.
- 8-1002 If the claimant was discharged or suspended for gross misconduct connected with the work, the claimant will be disqualified until he/she becomes reemployed and has earned twenty times his/her weekly benefit amount.
- 8-1002.1 If the claimant was discharged or suspended for aggravated misconduct connected with the work, the claimant will be disqualified until he/she has become reemployed and has earned thirty times his/her weekly benefit amount.
- 8-1003 If the claimant was suspended or discharged for misconduct (not gross) connected with the work, the claimant may be disqualified from five to ten weeks.
- 8-1004 If the claimant's unemployment is due to a stoppage of work because of a labor dispute (other than a lockout) he/she will be disqualified for the duration of the stoppage of work.
- 8-1005 If the claimant failed, without good cause, to apply for available, suitable work, or to accept such work when offered to him/her, the claimant may be disqualified from five to ten weeks or until he/she becomes reemployed and has earned ten times his/her weekly benefit amount.
- 8-1006 If the claimant has applied for or is receiving unemployment benefits under the laws of another State or of the United States, the claimant is not eligible for benefits in Maryland.
- 8-1007 If the claimant is receiving vacation or holiday pay and has a definite return to work date at the time of separation, benefits will be denied or reduced for the week(s) to which the pay applies.
- 8-1008 If the claimant is receiving a pension, annuity, profit sharing, or retirement pay other than Social Security, or any other similar periodic payment based on his/her previous work for a base period employer, benefits will be denied or reduced.
- 8-1009 If the claimant receives dismissal pay, benefits will be denied or reduced for the week(s) to which the pay applies.
- NOTE: No disqualification shall be applied under this Section if the claimant's unemployment is due to abolition of his/her job.

NOTICE OF TEMPORARY EXTENDED UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

The Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 2002 (TEUC) became effective in Maryland on March 10, 2002. The first week for which benefits are payable is for the week ending March 16, 2002. Benefits are not retroactive (prior to the week ending March 16, 2002) and may be payable only for future weeks of unemployment. This program provides for the payment of up to thirteen (13) total additional weeks of unemployment insurance benefits to claimants who are currently unemployed. NOTE: Benefits will be denied to anyone who quits employment to file for these benefits.

You may be eligible for the benefit extension because our records indicate that you have not worked in Maryland since you initially filed your claim for unemployment insurance benefits and you meet one of the following requirements:

- 1) You have exhausted all regular, state unemployment insurance benefits (26 times your weekly benefit amount) and your benefit year has not expired;
OR
- 2) Your benefit year expired on or after March 11, 2001, and you do not appear to qualify for a new benefit year for regular unemployment insurance benefits in any state.

If you have worked anywhere (including outside of Maryland) since last filing for unemployment insurance benefits, you must call the appropriate claim center before the extension of benefits may be paid in order to ensure that you receive all benefits to which you are entitled. Failure to notify this agency of this employment could result in unemployment insurance fraud. The Office of Unemployment Insurance is notified of a person's work history in a number of ways. Maryland employers are required to notify this agency anytime that a person is hired. Also, wages earned in other states are available to this agency via computer.

The claim center telephone numbers to call to report employment or change of address are listed on the back of this form. Immediately call the appropriate claim center if your address is different from the address used to mail this notice.

If you do not receive in the mail a "Notice of Available Benefit Weeks" for the week ending March 16, 2002, by March 27, 2002, call the appropriate claim center listed on the back of this form. Please do not call prior to March 27, 2002, as no information will be available and answering such calls will take time that would otherwise be used to process the claim.

Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation (TEUC) Telecert filing procedures for the payment of TEUC benefits are the same as the regular Telecert filing procedures. Once you receive the "Notice of Available Benefits Weeks" for the week ending March 16, 2002, call after the last week ending date available on the notice. Continue filing in this way for the duration of your benefits. From the Baltimore area and out-of state, call (410) 949-0022, and toll free outside Baltimore (but within Maryland), call 1-800-827-4839. For TTY callers, from the Baltimore area and out-of-state, call (410) 767-2727 and toll free outside Baltimore (but within Maryland), call 1-800-827-4400.

Dear Claimant:

You have been receiving benefits under the Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation (TEUC) Program. You began to receive benefits at the beginning of the TEUC program and your first check was for the benefit week ending March 16, 2002. You have received thirteen weeks of TEUC benefits and your last benefit check was for the benefit week ending June 8, 2002.

You have received all benefits that are available to you under the Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. There are no further benefit extensions available.

You are invited to continue to look for work using the Maryland Job Service. To find the location nearest to your home, please call 410-767-2173 or if you are using the Internet, the address is www.careernet.state.md.us.
